NATIONAL COLLEGIATE MEN'S AND WOMEN'S

Highlights

Ohio State clinches 2012 championship; wins team title during morning session on final day: Building off a nearly flawless, 13-1 performance the first day of the championship, redshirt junior Max Stearns cemented host Ohio State's fourth fencing NCAA championship and sent the decibel levels soaring inside French Field House with his fifth and final touch against Yale's Nathaniel Benzimra in the seventh round March 24.

Coming into the fourth and final day, the Buckeyes held a 14-point lead over Princeton and remained stable through the first hour and a half before opening a 20-point gap that clinched the title. The Buckeyes added one more point to their lead to finish with a 21-point advantage, 182 to Princeton's 161. Notre Dame nearly overcame the Tigers in the final round, but finished third with 160 points. St. John's (New York) and Penn State rounded out the top five.

The championship is the third combined (men's and women's) for the program, with all three coming under the direction of head coach Vladimir Nazlymov, who spent little time celebrating and remained focused on motivating his team for strong individual finishes. Ohio State won its first title in 1942 when the NCAA supported only men's fencing. Nazlymov also led the squad to titles in 2004 and 2008.

Stearns finished at the top of the sabre leaderboard at the end of qualifying rounds and earned the No. 1 seed heading into the semifinals. Sophomore teammate Rhys Douglas finished his second NCAA appearance with 12 victories to place 13th.

Junior Marco Canevari and sophomore Kristian Boyadzhiev continued their impressive run in men's épée as both earned a berth in semi-final bouts. Canevari remained in first throughout the day while Boyadzhiev edged Princeton's Jonathan Yergler and Nicholas Vomero of St. John's by one victory to secure third and ensure the possibility of an all-Buckeye championship.

Second-year foilist Zain Shaito gave the Buckeyes the sweep of No. 1 seeds in men's weapons. Shaito earned 19 wins, one more than Princeton's Alexander Mills, and went on to capture the title by defeating Stanford's Turner Caldwell in the final.

Ohio State sophomore Katarzyna Dabrowa won the women's épée, edging Penn State's Margherita Guzzi Vecenti, 15-14, in the title bout. The Buckeyes' Mona Shaito finished first in the women's foil round robin, winning 21 of 23 bouts, but lost in the semifinals.

Note: In 1990, team scoring was based on standings in weapon team events. In 1991, the scoring system was expanded to allow fencers not qualifying as part of a team to contribute points to team standings through their individual performances. As a result, point values for weapon team standings increased. In 1995, weapon team events were eliminated and team scoring was based on performance in the individual events, and women's épée was added as a fifth weapon. Starting in 1998, team scoring was based on a one-point system. In 2000, women's sabre was added as a sixth weapon.
