Texas A&M wins dramatic men's golf final: Texas A&M senior Bronson Burgoon had lost four straight holes before coming to the 18th in the match-play final of the Division I Men's Golf Championships on May 30, but while approaching his second shot, Burgoon said something "seemed to click" for him.

That "click" would be a 125-yard wedge shot from the rough to within three inches of the cup at the famous Inverness Club in Toledo, Ohio, to clinch his match against Arkansas' Andrew Landry and win the Aggies' first golf team title.

"Our assistant coach (Jonathan Dismuke) told me to hit it at this rail, and it just kept feeding right down to the hole," Burgoon said. "Right when it cleared the hill, I knew it was going to go down pretty close to the hole."

"I was struggling the last four holes. I put more pressure on myself than I should have. I was more discouraged for the guys on the team than for myself. The last hole something happened for me and seemed to click. I couldn't have drawn it up any better. To finish off my senior year with a national championship is incredible. I couldn't be happier."

Burgoon's heroics finished a 3-2 victory for the Aggies, who won the division's first title played under a match-play format. The first three rounds were conducted in stroke play, then the top eight teams in the three-round standings were seeded according to finish and pitted in a tournament-style, match-play affair.

Oklahoma State entered match play as the top seed after a blistering 54-hole total of 3-under-par 849, 13 shots ahead of Arizona State and 16 better than Southern California, Arkansas and Washington. Michigan, Texas A&M and Georgia rounded out the top eight and also advanced to match play.

Eighth-seeded Georgia took out the Cowboys, though, with a 3-2 decision in the match-play quarterfinals when senior Brian Harman birdied the 18th hole to defeat the Cowboys' Rickie Fowler, 1-up.

"That was unbelievable theater," Georgia coach Chris Haack said of Harman's putt in the quarterfinal round, which came moments after Fowler's birdie attempt barely missed. "That was two of the best players in college golf. On the 18th tee box, Brian turned to me and said, 'I'm not ready to go home yet.' That was one of the gutsiest performances I've ever seen."

In the semifinals, though, Georgia dropped a 3-1-1 decision to Southeastern Conference rival Arkansas, while Texas A&M took out Michigan by the same count.

After Burgoon's dramatic approach shot in the final, Arkansas' Landry conceded the birdie and then tried to convert his own 35-footer from the front edge of the green. Burgoon's teammates began high-fiving each other when it became apparent that Landry's putt was veering to the left.

"Bronson dominated his matches and played great golf all week," said Texas A&M coach J.T. Higgins. "He told me earlier this week that he wanted to be on 18 with a chance to win the national championships coming up the last fairway. What a way to come through. That's all I said to him on 18. I wouldn't rather have anybody else playing this hole than you right now even after losing four straight. I knew he was a clutch performer. I knew he'd come through and he did. I'm so proud of him."

Other match winners for the Aggies were John Hurley and Andrea Pavan. Texas A&M had never finished better than fourth (in 1982), despite having qualified for the national tournament 24 times. It was the Aggies' first NCAA title in any sport since the softball team won in 1987.

Jamie Marshall and Jason Cuthbertson won matches for the Razorbacks, who also were chasing their first title.

The tournament's medalist was determined at the end of the three-round stroke play. North Carolina State sophomore Matt Hill won the honors after firing 2-under-par 69 in all three rounds, the only golfer in the field to shoot sub-70 rounds each day of the event.

"I am pretty excited about this win, maybe a little bit more than I have been in the past," said Hill, who has won five consecutive collegiate tournaments and eight of the past nine tournaments he has entered. "I usually don't show a whole lot of emotion, but I am definitely going to celebrate this one. Winning a national championship is pretty hard to describe."

Hill won by two shots over Clemson's Kyle Stanley and by three over Fowler from Oklahoma State, Tom Glissmeyer of Southern California and Tom Hoge of TCU.

North Carolina State coach Richard Sykes praised Hill's consistency.

"He played the way he has played all year long," Sykes said. "He did not try shots he could not make. He did not get himself into trouble. When he had to make big shots, he made them. He got his confidence early this year, and he has never lost it."

Hill is the seventh Atlantic Coast Conference golfer to win the NCAA championship and the sixth player from a North Carolina school to win the title. Wake Forest's Curtis Strange, Jay Haas and Gary Hallberg won individual titles in the 1970s, while North Carolina's Harvie Ward (1949) and John Inman (1984) also won individual crowns. Hill is also the first Canadian golfer to win the NCAA title since James Lepp of the University of Washington took home top honors in 2005.
