DIVISION I WOMEN'S

2012 Highlights

Senior trio leads Oregon to first championship in 25 years. – Led by seniors Jordan Hasay, Alexi Pappas and Katie Conlon, Oregon captured its first NCAA Division I Women's Cross Country Championships title since 1987 November 17 at E.P. "Tom" Sawyer State Park in Louisville, Kentucky.

"In one way or another, every runner for Oregon stepped up and ran in a way they hadn't before," head coach Robert Johnson said. "I am so proud of our women's team and the job done by assistant coach Maurica Powell.

"We are absolutely thrilled to be able to bring this national title back home to the state of Oregon."

Hasay led an impressive pack of Ducks who were in the race's top 50 nearly the entire 6,000-meter distance. Oregon ended up with 114 points, followed by Providence with 183, Stanford with 198 and Florida State with 202.

Hasay was in the lead pack throughout, only falling to Iowa State's Betsy Saina and Dartmouth's Abbey D'Agostino at the tape. After a sprint to the finish, Saina was the individual champion in 19:27.9, followed by D'Agostino and Hasay both in 19:28.6.

"I wanted to win, but I wanted the team to win more, so I'm pretty happy about that," Hasay said. "We've been trying to win this meet ever since my freshman year, so it's great to be able to do it with these girls who have been supporting each other for so long."

Pappas, a transfer from Dartmouth, ran just a few strides off the lead pack the entire race, and finished eighth in 19:43.9.

"It was a fast race," Pappas said. "I just kept pushing and tried to do the best I could for the team."

Conlon, a transfer from NAIA member Jamestown College in North Dakota, had been the Ducks' fifth or sixth runner during the regular season, but put on a strong kick during the final third of the race, passing a couple dozen runners to place 39th in 20:15.0.

Freshman Allie Woodward hit the finish line as Oregon's fourth runner. She was 44th overall in 20:19.5, and classmate Annie Leblanc capped the scoring for the Ducks, finishing 68th in 20:31.5.

Initially, the Ducks' were not awarded their first title in 25 years. Due to a timing error in the results, Providence was first credited with the win.

Almost immediately, it became apparent that Pappas and other runners had been omitted from the final standings. After about 30 minutes, the results were corrected and Ducks were crowned the national champions.

"It was a bit of a rollercoaster there," Conlon said. "But we knew we ran a good, strong race. It was kind of a shock when they said we didn't win, but now, we're good.

"I guess never really let myself think about winning a national championship. It's pretty amazing."

It is the third NCAA women's cross country title in Oregon's history. The others came in 1983 and 1987 under coach Tom Heinonen.

Saina, a senior, became Iowa State's first NCAA individual cross country champion. She joined former Iowa State champions Peg Neppel (1975) and Dorthe Rasmussen (1981), who won AIAW individual titles as Cyclones.
